Kordek Vordana

AFFILIATION	• Coruscant • Galactic Republic ◦ Galactic Senate

Overview

Kordek Vordana is a human male born within the Upper Levels of Coruscant. Raised in a wealthy and powerful family, he was raised in an isolated enviorment with little to no strain or stress in his life. As such, he developed an easy-going personality which has both helped and harmed his career paths.

At a young age, Kordek would always see the nationalism of the people of Coruscant who were always eager to risk their lives and fight for their shared democracy. This conditioned him to enlist the Republic Cadet Academy at the beginning of the Clone Wars to ensure said nationalism was present in the Clone Army. After the death of his father, Praxis Vordana, Kordek left the Republic Cadet Academy to enter the world of politics to represent the Coruscanti whom had once shared the nationalism he held.

Abilities

Early Life

Kordek Vordana was born on the Upper Levels of Coruscant in 958 RSY; his parents were Praxis and Alora Vordana. In Kordek's early years, his father, Praxis, was often absent from his life because of his duties as the Head Academist of the Republic Clone Academy. Naturally, in those first four years of his life, his mother, Alora, took Kordek and his twin, Kade, under her wing. Up until the age of four, life was quite prosperous for the Vordana family, and being born into wealth did no harm. However, with the birth of their youngest sibling, Elara Vordana, Alora passed due to complications with the birth.

The death of their main caretaker rocked the family, especially Kordek and Kade, who spent their entire lives up until that point with her. From the moment their mother died, Kade hated Elara, and as they grew up, the conflict between the two only grew. Those fights between them pained Kordek; torn between his love for his sister and his loyalty to his twin. Instead of picking a side, Kordek vowed to remain neutral and act as the bridge between the two siblings.

As the years passed, Kordek enlisted within the Coruscant Military School. When he first joined the school, he became devoted to his studies and quickly excelled in his classes, being adored by all his teachers and praised as a natural leader. During his latter years in the academy, Kordek met a girl named Kyla Janren. The two quickly became close friends; bonding over a shared love of strategy and like-minded ideals. They turned from friends to lovers, spending countless nights with eachother until Kyla announced that she was pregnant.

Afraid of what his family would think of Kyla, Kordek kept her and the pregnancy a secret. Eventually, the two conceived a child: Eiren Vordana - which changed Kordek's perspective on the whole galaxy. Kordek eventually proposed to Kyla, and the two were wedded; becoming Kordek and Kyla Vordana. Just before graduation from the academy, Praxis Vordana noticed Kordek's honor recommendations and offered him a position as an instructor for the Republic Cadet Academy on Kamino. Kordek immediately agreed, ecstatic that he was given the chance to work alongside the rest of his family. When he broke the news to Kyla that he would be leaving to pursue his career, an argument would break out between the two. Angered that Kordek could not tell her where he was going or what he was doing, Kyla took their daughter and left for good.
