

ST-8472 "BASS"

Overview

ST-8472 "BASS" is a ST-series Super Tactical Droid commissioned by the Confederacy of Independent Systems to operate as an Admiral in the Separatist Military. Created to counteract the inflexible and predictable deficiencies of the T-series model, ST-series Super Tactical Droids were programmed with higher strategical processing and intelligence, while also equipped with better tactical analysis and predicting a response to organic commanders.

The personality of ST-8472 "BASS" developed after High Admiral Pax which made him cold and calculative. Although known to be quiet, BASS acts as the direct line of communication between Pax and the CIS Admiralty. BASS is described by those who work around him to be introverted, monotone, yet highly efficient, prioritizing accuracy and procedure in all interactions. Also described as a stickler for rules, BASS is known to address personnel by rank and designation over name while enforcing all under him to adhere to CIS protocol. This demeanor and attention to detail had make him a reliable figure within the ranks of the Separatist Military and the right hand of High Admiral Pax.

Abilities

As an ST-series Super Tactical Droid, ST-8472 "BASS" possesses the advanced abilities that all other units of his model possess. Super Tactical Droids were created for the Confederacy of Independent Systems to adress the shortcomings of the T-series Tactical Droids. As such, they are highly adaptable, durable, and hold far more advanced processing power then their T-series counterpart. Additionally, all ST-series Super Tactical Droids are built with three photoreceptors, providing a wider optical range across the light spectrum.
