ST-9138 "Severs"

Overview

OWNER	• Confederacy of Independent Systems • Asajj Ventress
AFFILIATION	• Confederacy of Independent Systems • Separatist Military

ST-9138 "Severs" is a ST-series Super Tactical Droid commissioned by the Confederacy of Independent Systems to operate as a General in the Separatist Military. Created to counteract the inflexible and predictable deficiencies of the T-series model, ST-series Super Tactical Droids were programmed with higher strategical processing and intelligence, while also equipped with better tactical analysis and predicting a response to organic commanders.

The personality of ST-9138 "Severs" developed to become deceptive and methodical to counter-balance that of his assigned owner Asajj Ventress. Severs would deploy strategy over firepower and attempt to outmaneuver his opponents rather than Ventress's perferred method of brute force. Severs would be prone to exploit the weaknesses of his enemies, create false expectations of others, and use phsychological warfare to disrupt command structures to turn a battle in his favor. His calculated approach and strategic placements had made him one of the most trusted assets within the Separatist Military.

Abilities

As an ST-series Super Tactical Droid, ST-9138 "Severs" possesses the advanced abilities that all other units of his model possess. Super Tactical Droids were created for the Confederacy of Independent Systems to adress the shortcomings of the T-series Tactical Droids. As such, they are highly adaptable, durable, and hold far more advanced processing power then their T-series counterpart. Additionally, all ST-series Super Tactical Droids are built with three photoreceptors, providing a wider optical range across the light spectrum.
