The Grand Army of the Republic serves as the naval branch of the Galactic Republic and its military throughout the duration of the Clone Wars. It was primarily composed of Clone troopers with a handful of human forces serving as naval officers and admiralty. It was presided over by a Supreme Commander, Grand Admiral, and Vice Grand Admiral alongside various Fleet Admirals.

The primary responsibilites of the Grand Republic Navy included combatting the Confederacy of Independent System and it's Separatist Military while safeguard member planets of the Galactic Republic from various external threats.

History

The Grand Republic Navy was founded on the aquatic planet of Kamino in 965 RSY when Senator Varkis Drayce, in collaboration with Jedi Master Dooku, commissioned the creation of a Clone Army by the Kaminoan Ruling Council.

Originally kept a secret from the Galactic Senate and Jedi Order, the Clone Army was considered to be an expansion of the Judicial Forces. Both Senator Varkis Drayce and Jedi Master Dooku oversaw the operation, commissioning an initial batch of Clones designated as Null-class Advanced Recon Commandos while later batches would form the 104th Armored Battalion and fill various officer and command positions.

In 980 RSY, Senator Varkis Drayce delivered his famous "War Is Brewing" Speech in response to the growing Outer Rim Separatist coalition within the Outer Rim of the galaxy. Addressing the Galactic Senate, he informed them of his creation of the Clone Army alongside Jedi Master Dooku and called for the militarization of the Galactic Republic.

As the Outer Rim Separatist coalition grew into an full-on Confederacy, so did the concern of the Galactic Senate. Deciding to heed the advice of Senator Varkis Drayce, a motion was passed in 980 RSY to officially establish the lab-grown Clone Army as the official militarized forces of the Galactic Republic.
