Historical Information

Not much is known about the beginnings of Avalon. All that is known is from the story of "Cyrus", a figure of Avalonian legend. It is said the Land of Tea was also a barren desert, like its neighbor, before Cyrus's time. Not much is known about his upbringing, though it is theorized he grew up in a lower economic class. When he was a child, legend says that he discovered he was able to control "chakra from the earth itself". Eventually, he would teach his fellow Avalonians how to utilize chakra, but they could not utilize it in the same capacity as he could. Notably, he taught the founders of the three great clans: A noblewoman, Petra Lamora; A soldier, Ahjin Ryoba; A monk, Kaladin Tome. However, things could not last as they were. The government allegedly became fearful of a potential uprising by the people so they somehow tricked Cyrus into meeting with them near what would later be called "Lake Hydra". Using unknown methods, they were able to bind Cyrus; however, before he could perish, he used his immense chakra to shatter the chains and send waves of chakra around the Land of Tea. In exchange for his life, Cyrus terraformed the barren desert into a lush, green paradise. After this, Peta Lamora took power and created a new nation: Avalon.
