Masters of Earth

Master Lo'ro Uzumaki

The first master to arrive was Master Lo'ro Uzumaki, a traveling shinobi known for experiencing the world's most precious thing—alcohol. Initially underestimated by the Iwagakure shinobi, Master Lo'ro surprised them with his mastery of spiritual arts and inner strength. Under his guidance, the shinobi spent two days meditating on an island of earth in the sky, gaining clarity and a deeper understanding of their own power.

Master Cirit Kazesuna

Following Master Lo'ro, Master Cirit Kazesuna of the Sungakure arrived. Unlike the spiritual focus of the first master, Master Cirit emphasized physical strength and determination. Through rigorous trials in the arena, he instilled a sense of confidence in the Iwagakure shinobi, proving that they possessed strength but needed guidance in the right direction.

Master Draken Karatachi and the Order of Dawnstar

As anticipation built for the arrival of the third master, Master Draken Karatachi of the Order of Dawnstar made a dramatic entrance. He planned to teach the importance of thinking, strategy, and unity. However, before the trials could begin, a shocking turn of events occurred. Master Draken was betrayed by his own followers, who accused him of being a traitor. A conflict ensued, resulting in the defeat of the Order's members and a funeral for Master Draken.

Unanswered Questions

The mysterious nature of the Order of Dawnstar and the shocking betrayal left the Iwagakure shinobi with many unanswered questions. Who were these individuals, and what role did the Order play in the events that transpired? Only time would reveal the true impact of the Masters of Earth on the revival of Iwagakure and the challenges that lay ahead.
